A place in this world

There is for sure a place in this world where fireworks last forever, first loves talk of marriage, moons are always golden, and waterfalls return to the source for a visit and stay for tea.

There is for sure a place in this world where bluebirds quote Nietzsche, hills actually tell you their story, molecules can be seen naked, and no matter which road you travel from reindeer always say plea(se).

There is for sure a place in this world where flowers don't discolour, we can speak volumes silently, use other peoples eyes wisely, and let me tell you this of fine spaces remember that and you'll be.

Andrew Gryf Paterson, 2000.